The search uncovered liquor, pills, suspected cocaine and drug paraphernalia. Arrested were store owner Sean Abraham and employee Georgianna Carpenter.

Godbey: Lincoln County High School is prepared for state inspection

By Michael Broihier

Lincoln High Principal Tim Godbey said Monday that though there is understandable apprehension to the wide-ranging inspection of his school by Kentucky Department of Education (KDE) officials this week, he feels that the faculty, staff and students are prepared and, regardless of the outcome, the school will benefit from the state visit.

LCHS was named a Persistently Low Achieving School (PLA) last year and state and federal regulations dictate that the school's leadership be assessed by a team of current and former educators, parents and others from outside of the district.

The team, trained to assess the capacity of the school's principal, site based council and district leadership in terms of established standards, had an in-brief with Godbey Sunday and has been in the school all week interviewing students, teachers and staff members. They will conclude their work today and report out informally on Friday. Godbey says that the team has 30 days to publish an official assessment and make their recommendations.

Godbey said that there hasn't been a lot of physical preparation since the assessment visit was announced because the school has been implementing change to the way business was done since he took charge of the school three years ago. "If you look at the test results, we've made progress every year, but what has made things grimmer and grimmer is that under No Child Left Behind (NCLB), the bar kept getting raised higher and higher each year.

Kentucky and nine other states were freed from the restrictions of NCLB after committing to implement their own, federally approved assessment systems. Godbey says that Kentucky's new assessment system will more accurately portray the progress LCHS has been making. "Progress is exactly the word," Godbey said. "I feel the state has a better model as far as student accountability goes."

Previously, students who weren't college bound had little investment in the annual ACT test, but under the new system success on the ACT is just one of many standards used to assess student performance.

Of highest importance,

Gobey said, is "creating graduates that are 21st Century literate."

That was one of three priorities he put forward to teachers that also includes ensuring that each student has a valuable relationship with at least one adult in the school and that the high school is an environment that reduces risky behavior among adolescents.

Despite his optimism, Godbey admits that there have been some bad days. One of the options the PLA team has is recommending that the principal be replaced. "Regardless of the outcome, I feel like I've worked hard for the kids every day and that all of the changes I've made are student-centric. I am always proud to say that I am the principal of Lincoln County High School."

One stop shopping Crossroads Market raid nets pills, booze and suspected cocaine

By Michael Broihier

For a store that has a hard time keeping cigarettes in stock, the Crossroads Market on US 127 in Hustonville is apparently providing a lot of other products. Friday afternoon, the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office conducted a joint-raid with the Hustonville Police Department to execute a warrant in search of a suspected drug-dealing operation.

Sheriff Curt Folger said that his office had been working closely with Hustonville PD Chief Fred McCoy over the last several months and had recently executed an undercover drug buy of methamphetamine at the busy market. Folger said that a search warrant was issued Friday morning and at 3 p.m. a dozen county officers accompanied McCoy on a search of the store which produced alcohol, pills and packets of suspected cocaine.

When officers arrived at the market a customer was found behind the market cutting out a line of what appeared to be cocaine.

The deputies used their newest partner, K-9 Deputy Ingo, that alerted on suspected drugs stored in several locations in the market.

Crossroads owner Sean Abraham, 43, of Lancaster, was arrested at the scene despite protesting loudly about being detained and asking store employee Georginna Carpenter, 41, "What have you got me into?" Abraham was charged with trafficking in a controlled substance and menacing. He was released on $2,500 cash bond and will be arraigned on Feb. 27.

Folger said that Abraham had previously been suspected of drug trafficking before in a Shell station he owns in Lancaster.

Carpenter, of Hustonville, was also arrested and charged with trafficking, possession of cocaine and trafficking within 1,000 yards of a school. She was arraigned on Monday and is being held in the Lincoln County Regional Detention Center pending a $5,000 cash bond. Carpenter had a previous drug possession conviction for cocaine possession in Boyle County in 2006.

Pills, powder and paraphernalia were found in the Crossroads Market Friday.

Got goats? Just Kidding farm strives to meet growing demand while beef prices rise

By Katelynn Griffin

Soon, beef might not be what's for dinner for everyone, due to a steady increase in price. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, last December, steak and ground chuck prices increased 11 percent.

More price increases are expected this year; In 2011, the US cattle herd declined two percent, totaling 90.8 million head as of this January making it the smallest herd since 1952. And, major cattle producing states, like Texas and Oklahoma, had to cull their herds due to an ongoing drought last year. Couple that with the increased cost of raising cattle, such as feed and fuel expenses, and the high demand for the product, consumers will be forced to fork out more and more of their hard earned cash. Fortunately, there is a local alternative and people across the state are trying to market their product, albeit to a leery customer.

Farmers have been raising sheep and goats in Kentucky for years, but many people don't think of them as an alternative to beef. However, these locally-raised meats are commercially marketed and that market may be growing.

Leoni Mundelius, owner and operator of Leoni's Just Kidding Kiko Farm has been raising goats for eight years, and the project started innocently enough. When she moved to Lincoln County in 2003 with her husband and two daughters, the Mundelius property was covered with weeds. "I fell in love with the land because it was so beautiful," Mundelius said. She suggested that they get some goats, but it was a joke. "We had never farmed before."

That joke turned into a serious operation and she now raises 200 Kiko goats. The Kiko breed originated in New Zealand and was brought to the US in the 1980s. "Kiko are the best suited for our climate and if you want to go commercial, go Kiko. They are hardy, easy, and less maintenance." She said that they kid, or have their babies, in harsh winters, even withstanding the snow. Mundelius said, many people in Kentucky make the mistake of purchasing Boer goats, mainly because of their beautiful red and white coloring. They are an African species and are better suited for places like Texas, rather than Kentucky. "You need something you can market; not just a goat for decoration," she said.

Mundelius said the market is currently in the larger cities and that the local area does not have an abundance of retail, or restaurants buying the product. "We're not yet able to cover the need for goat in America. We still buy imports from places like Australia." Raising goats became popular in Kentucky after the tobacco buyout several years ago and it is a very popular alternative to raising cattle; the USDA ranked Kentucky seventh in the nation for meat goats last year.

Some of over 200 Kiko goats at the Just Kidding Farm on McKinney Road. Owner Leoni Mundelius said that goats are a tasty, economical and healthful alternative to beef which has seen a steep rise in price over the last year with higher prices expected to come.

However, in order to increase the popularity of goat meat locally, there needs to be a change in public perception of these animals. "There is a high demand for goat," Mundelius said. "You just have to convince Lincoln County that they're not pets."

Goats, according to Mundelius are surprisingly easy. She takes care of her goats by herself, feeding them hay every day during the winter and on extremely cold days, she will feed them some corn. Other than that, she gives them minerals to

Congress wants to blame Panetta for their failure to fund DoD

Secretary of Defense Leon Panetta dumped the issue of budget cuts back where it belonged, in Congress' lap, after receiving harsh criticism to his plans to steeply cut military manpower this week. Panetta told lawmakers critical of his plans to steeply reduce the size of the Army and Marine Corps that he was playing within the bounds of the rules they set when Congress abrogated their responsibility to budget the DoD in keeping with the requirements of the National Security Strategy. Last year, when Congress failed to create a budget they created a super-committee to resolve the issue instead. They also created automatic budget cuts should the super-committee fail, which of course it did.

The most telling and hypocritical response to Panetta's budget plans was made by Oklahoma Republican Senator James Inhofe who told him that Congress wouldn't go along with recommended base closings because of the upfront costs of base closures and that the bases were needed. The obvious question is, "Needed by whom?" The most likely answer is needed by Inhofe's constituents who make a living off bases.

Travis Sharp, a fellow at the Center for New American Security, made the weakest argument for sustaining the current force complaining that the 100,000 Marines and soldiers to be let go would be released into a high-unemployment environment, and laughably exclaimed, "In an election year!"

You've read it here before but you need to hear it again. The nation's defense manpower, equipment and infrastructure is based on current and anticipated threats to our national security...period. That means manpower, equipment, training, infrastructure, research and development which have nothing to do with keeping elected officials in office or their constituents employed which is looking more and more like the same thing.

That the DoD can meet current and rising operational challenges on a reduced budget is self-evident, and with the end of the war in Iraq and anticipated withdraw from Afghanistan there will be some necessary right-sizing of the forces, but cuts, real cuts need to come from Washington based on need and not want. Congress members want bases in their states and districts, they want research, development and construction of defense projects in their districts and they want to keep their friends who make billions off of the DoD employed, but all of those wants pale in the face of the need to defend the country's interests.

Ironically, it was Inhofe who summed it up best, "This is supposed to be our number one concern up here, defending our country."

Panetta has been getting all of the heat for the proposed cuts but it rightfully belongs on Congress. They have very few enumerated responsibilities and one of them is to provide for the common defense which they have failed to do.

Panetta is just playing, albeit craftily, the cards he was dealt by those we elected and have failed to discharge their duties.

To bridge religious divide, let students engage students

By Charles C. Haynes

In a world torn by holy wars and ethnic divides, preparing young people to address differences in faith and belief should be a no-brainer.

After all, history teaches that religious intolerance and hate are often rooted in ignorance and fear.

That's why it's disturbing, if not dangerous, that most schools in the United States and around the globe largely ignore religion, doing little or nothing to help students live in a world where religion and religious differences clearly matter.

Fortunately, one foundation – the Tony Blair Faith Foundation – is daring to go where few have gone before by giving students meaningful opportunities to learn from one another about the role of faith and belief in public life.

Called "Face to Faith," the foundation's schools initiative uses videoconferencing and online community to connect students directly with their peers in classrooms across the world. Launched in 2009, Face to Faith is now in more than 500 schools in 17 countries. (Disclosure: I serve as an adviser to the program in the U.S.)

Last week, country-coordinators from participating nations gathered in London to report progress and plan expansion. The good news is that despite barriers – everything from political tensions to lack of technology – many schools are eager to participate. (For more about how the program is working in various countries, visit www.tonyblairfaithfoundation.org.)

In some regions of the world, of course, even talking about religions and beliefs can be a risky business. Consider Pakistan, where political turmoil, extremist threats and widespread poverty create daunting conditions for any educational initiative – much less one that involves civil dialogue among people of vastly different faiths and cultures.

Nevertheless, the Pakistani coordinator for Face to Faith, a courageous educator named Danish, has overcome skepticism from some and hostility from others to persuade 31 schools to implement the program – with many more waiting in the wings.

Remarkably, given the bitter (often violent) animosity between Pakistan and neighboring India, Danish has worked with Simmi, the Indian coordinator, to link students from schools in both nations.

Step one is to prep students in the art of civil discourse, including how to address deep differences without going for the jugular. But once a Face to Faith videoconference begins, the focus is on student voice. Students speak directly with students, giving many of them the first opportunity in their lives to put a human face to the Other.

"They get beyond what they have heard from politicians about India as the enemy," says Danish. "When Pakistani and Indian students participate in a videoconference, they discuss the differences and similarities of different faiths and beliefs – and show respect for each other."

Over the past year, American schools have begun to get involved. At the London meeting, the U.S. coordinator reported that Face to Faith is now active in some 50 public and private schools in 13 states. Students in schools across America have already engaged students in Israel, India, Lebanon, Palestinian Territories, Pakistan and elsewhere.

The potential of Face to Faith for dealing with the challenges of religious diversity has not gone unnoticed by American educators and government officials. Last fall, U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan joined students from Chantilly High School in Fairfax, Va., for a transatlantic videoconference with former Prime Minister Tony Blair and students from the United Arab Emirates.

"The United States is changing rapidly," Duncan said during the exchange. "Young people need to embrace it – not be overwhelmed by diversity. There are two paths: tolerance or intolerance, and we can look to young people to help lead us to tolerance. Face to Faith is an amazingly inspiring and powerful way to learn, and create more space for this important dialogue."

What ultimately matters, of course, is how this initiative affects students. Although the evaluation of the program is preliminary at this early stage, anecdotal evidence is strong that the program is working.

"Face to Faith not only serves to inform us about other religions," says one New York student, "but it also humanizes them."

Students learning with, from and about other students across the world may not change the world overnight. But it's a very good place to start.

An encouraging word

More than a momentary flash

By Howard Coop

As I enjoyed a meal at my favorite restaurant on a recent late Sunday afternoon, I became acutely aware of considerable commotion at a table behind me. In seconds, a group of interesting people—children, teenagers, and young adults—came by my table. Then, for some reason, as a group and as individuals, they continued to go from, and back to, their seats regularly for the duration of my meal.

I was struck by what I saw passing the table where I ate. Regardless of age or sex, everyone in the group had a very similar look. They were all dressed very much alike; each of them wore old looking or faded blue jeans with a few holes, and each of them had their hair styled as much alike as possible. As a result, everyone in the group, from the youngest child to the oldest adult, looked a lot alike. I got the impression that each member of the group wanted to be as much like the other members as possible, for the desire to imitate, to be like, others, is a powerful and compelling feeling.

The next morning when I went to my desk to begin the work of the day, I opened an old notebook in which I, sometimes, write little notes to myself. The first note I saw on the first page before me was an entry made about a year ago. It was a startling reminder of the previous evening. It said, "Let us not be like others. Be the self you were created to be." Then I discovered that a little over six hundred years ago Miguel de Cervantes, a Spanish satirical novelist and dramatist, wrote, "Make it thy business to know thyself which is the most difficult lesson in the world."

This understanding, and development, of the self is more than a momentary flash of insight. Often, it is a long and arduous task that leaves little room for imitation.

News from Ottenheim

By Dorothea Schlappi

We extend our deepest sympathy to Carol and Lee Philpot in the loss of their loved one. Jimmy passed this last week at the age of 46. May God be with you at this time of sorrow.

A household shower and meal was shared at St. Sylvester Church after services on Sunday for Andy Bratcher and Danielle Lane. They are soon to be wed. Many nice gifts were given to them from friends and family.

There are a few people who have and are celebrating birthdays and anniversaries around Valentine's Day. Have a happy day and also to all the lovers on Valentine's Day.

A new family moved into the Ottenheim area this week. D.J. Sanders and Kisia moved into the former Leroy and Mary A. Goetz house. We hope they will enjoy living in our community.

Milk saved the day! Recently, a car was parked along the highway with a woman sitting in it. A passing car of people saw fire coming from the car. They didn't know what to do, so they looked for something to put out the fire – a few cans of Mountain Dew were found, but it would not put the fire out. A gallon of skim milk was noticed in the car and believe it or not, the gallon of milk was used to pour over the fire and had extinguished the fire about the time 911 members showed up.

The cold weather was not enjoyed by everyone, but we do need it to kill some of the insects and such for crops this year. It will also help hold the season back a little before everything comes out too soon.

There were quite a few people missing Sunday at church due to illnesses. Here's hoping next Sunday shows an improvement for everyone.

Tax preparers are busy now, so remember it's that time of year again. Seems all the bills I have been getting have gone up, like insurances, medicines, household expenses – when will it slow down? Seems we are gonna have to shop around for cheaper companies to deal with, but then they may not have as good a coverage. We can't gain or losing.

Who says a dog's life is good! It's hard on animals during this cold weather. We need to be sure our pets are taken good care of. If only they could talk or we could read their minds. Maybe we'd know what they wanted.

Fresh fruits and vegetables are so tasty this time of year, there seems to be a good supply in the stores. We can really enjoy them raw and especially if we can get them on sale.

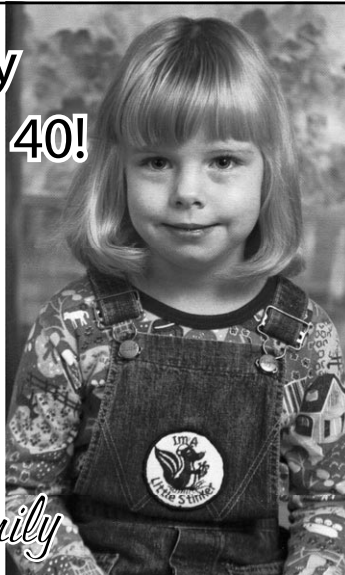

Life is the greatest gift of all bargains, we get it for nothing.

Fairview Baptist Church news

By Shelby Lakes

Bro. Johnny Baker's message on Sunday focused on the leadership role of pastors in churches. He said there is no greater role than the one of those chosen to teach and preach, and that the world's view of leadership is to "serve me, so I can accomplish what I want." But the pastors' role is to accomplish God's goals and to glorify Jesus Christ.

Some are afraid to preach God's word, Bro. Johnny said. This is serious business, what is in the bible can give life. There is no higher responsibility than preaching the word of God; it deals with people's eternity. He said he is convinced that the bible contains answers to all of life's problems: finances, marriage, employer, depression, and sadness, to mention a few. But it won't help if you don't trust. If your goals are to please and glorify God, there will be no end to the contentment and joys you will have, he said. (I was reminded here of Luke 1: 33. "And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.") There will be no end of our joys because there will be no end of his kingdom.)

Bro. Johnny said that encouraging comments don't keep him preaching, and negative comments don't stop him. He preaches to change the spiritual lives of the hearers. We should be prepared to listen, he said, just as we expect him to be prepared to preach. He asked for prayer for boldness, insight and God's protection as he preaches God's word. (End of sermon summary)

Bro. Jeremy Pope, youth minister, announced that the church had voted to help feed needy children at Highland Elementary School. Some children only get nourishing meals at school, he said, and the church will provide food in backpacks for them on weekends.

The youth of the church will have a fund-raiser on Feb. 14 by having an evening meal of either steak ($12) or chicken ($10). Proceeds will help with their El Salvador mission trip.

122 attended Sunday school; 191 were present for the worship service.

Those celebrating birthdays were Jennifer Gover, Laytham Rowe, Terry Oaks, Frankie Hale, Nina Todd, Brian Singleton, Cathy Tankersly and Dianne Napier.

Stanford Nazarene Church news

By Buford Edwards II

Sunday morning, Stanford Church of the Nazarene was blessed by the wonderful worship service and challenged by the Word of God as Bro. Andy brought the message from 1 Kings. We had 61 in attendance for our morning service, with several returning Sunday night for our evening service as the Holy Spirit moved in a special way and one soul was added to the Kingdom of God!

Come out Wednesday night for Christian Education Night. The kids meet for Bensons Buddies, Caravan, Junior Youth and Youth classes. Our adult class dubbed, "The Book" Club is currently working through the book of Revelation.

This week we will continue our study of Revelation and will be reading in Rev. 12. Read up and join us for Bible study as we continue to discuss "The Passing of the Second Woe" as well as the verse of the week: Rev. 12:2 (KJV) "And she being with child cried, traveling in birth, and pained to be delivered."

Thought for the week: Regardless of how hard Satan tries to thwart the plan of God, God has been, is, and always will be in control and His will, will be done!

The ladies are meeting every other Tuesday at 6 p.m. in the sanctuary completing a Beth Moore study on the book of Daniel. Come out to the next meeting on Feb. 21 and get involved in this study!

Revival time is here! Bro. Kenny Greenway from Highpoint, N.C. will be with us again this year for our spring revival Feb. 26-29. Begin preparing spiritually for revival now and come join us!

News from New Covenant Church

By Bethany Rowland

God was definitely with us at New Covenant on Sunday, Feb. 12. Morning and evening service were both filled with the spirit so strong that it was hard to contain. Pastor, Bro. Joel Rowland, gave a wonderful message Sunday morning on "The Unexpected Warriors", reading text from Isaiah 33:13-17.

Constantly throughout our lives the enemy comes to fight us. We don't always know how he is going to fight. Everything can seem completely fine and then, all of a sudden, the enemy throws something in front of us through our marriage, children, finances, etc. and before we know it we have a battle on our hands. Lately, it seems, the people of New Covenant are facing surprise attacks. The enemy is attacking when everyone least expects it and in ways that we would've never imagined.

But Bro. Joel said he was happy about that. He said when the enemy starts having to use surprise attacks that's a good thing. That means that he is no longer prevalent in our lives. He no longer has any control on us so that he can use what he already has, now he is having to design new battle tactics to throw in our way and try to defeat us.

Bro. Joel talked spoke of the revolutionary war, there were men from the colonies that stood up and said they would fight the battle. They were farmers and such, knew nothing about how to fight and win a war, but they were willing to fight for what they believed in.

Many doubted them, but there was a man, George Washington, who was willing to stand up in the midst of the doubt and say that he would lead these men, these unexpected warriors, to fight this battle. They won the war and are the reason that we have the freedom we do today.

Abraham, one of the greatest men of all time, was called by God out of a Pagan nation that worshiped the sun and moon God. But the one true God called him out to be a nation of His own. The pagans surely mocked Abram because he said he'd heard from Jehovah and left everything he knew to follow him. He was an unexpected warrior, but he did amazing things.

Moses had the calling of God on his life but he was sent to the back side of the desert. Until one day, unexpectedly, God told Moses bring the children of Israel out of bondage.

David was the smallest of all his brothers, a simple shepherd boy, yet he had a heart for and was faithful to God, that makes all the difference. He was a man after God's own heart (Acts 13:22) and he was unexpectedly called and defeated the giant.

These are just a few of the examples in the Bible of "unexpected warriors". There are countless others such as Paul, who persecuted Christians yet became one of the greatest apostles of all time. Rahab, who was a harlot, yet she saved the men of God and became a part of the lineage of Christ. Esther, who was a Jewish woman, yet she was chosen by the king to be his queen and ended up saving the entire Jewish people (also a part of the lineage of Christ). Mary was just a young girl yet she was chosen out of all the world to bear the most precious child ever to be born. There are countless examples in the Bible of men and women who would've never been considered for a great work by man, but God sees the heart and knows what we're capable of.

God is calling each and every one of us to be unexpected warriors. People may look at us and think that we will never do anything important, but they are not the One that calls us. We may think ourselves that we can't do anything, but we are deceiving ourselves. It isn't our place to say what we can and can't do. We have Christ in us. We are to let Him live through us. He can do anything and everything. Phil. 4:13 "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." You don't strengthen yourself, Christ strengthens you. Christ does the work, you just have to be willing to let Him use you.

Yes, there are those that everyone expects to be the one that God uses that He will use when it is in His will and time. But think of the blind, deaf and lame men. They have just as much influence in the Bible as the "great" men of God. These ailed men may not have been able to travel the land preaching but they were able to be examples of God's amazing ability to work miracles. A blind man could cry out and say that the Lord leads him, a lame man could cry out that the Lord is real and carries him, a deaf man could cry out and say that even though he may not be able to hear the voices of men he can still hear the voice of the Lord, the only one that matters.

The most successful warriors aren't the ones that men assume can do it, they aren't the ones that think they can do it on their own, the most successful warriors aren't measured by their physical strength, they are measured by their faithfulness to God and their strength that comes only from Him. The warriors aren't always the ones that everyone knows about, many times it's the unexpected warriors, the ones in the background, that no one even knew existed, that will stand up and bring victory in the battle. God is raising up unexpected warriors in this generation, we just have to be willing to follow His leading and understand that it isn't us it's Him. Do you want to stand on the sidelines, or do you want to rise to the challenge?

To hear this wonderful messages and many others visit our website at Newcovenantholiness.webs.com and come out Sunday mornings at 11 a.m., Sunday evenings at 6 p.m. and Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Everyone is welcome for praise and worship services and for our Trinitarian outreach programs. You can find all outreach programs and other upcoming events on our website along with many links and Bible studies.

Pleasant View Baptist Church news

By Scena Ann Petrey

Sunday, Feb. 12 presented special services for Pleasant View. The total men's choir opened services for Baptist Men's Day. Following the music, Brad Petrey and Jacob Ruhe gave their testimonies for the early service while Keith Singleton and Jeff McWhorter gave their testimonies for the late service. Special music featured Brackie Gather as he sang "Would thou be made whole; do you want a new life?" Jesus gives all of us a new, whole life if we only receive!

Bro. Kyle's message, number seven in the series "Proverbs – A Guide to Life," was entitled "Wisdom Applied – Family Relationships." The four points of his message were wisdom to those who are thinking about marriage, wisdom to those who are married, wisdom to those who are parents, and wisdom to the children.

Whom one marries is one of the most important decisions a person ever makes. One's husband or wife will become the second most important person in his/her life – the most important being God. Character is a top priority in choosing the right mate. A marriage grounded in Jesus Christ is an advantageous point.

Those who are married "are blessed" according to Bro. Kyle. Our culture is obsessed with finding "the one"; once we marry we should live a committed partnership with our spouse.

Parents are instructed by the Bible to show and teach our children. We should carry out our words with actions. Advice to children is to be rebellious to the world, but respectful to parents. "It is wise for children to do this!" explained Bro. Kyle. "We have families so we can grow closer to each other and God," Bro. Kyle pointed out in the conclusion. We are born into a family; we marry into a family; we are part of God's family – the church!

Bro. Kyle mentioned the four distorted attitudes of a church. Church as a gas station – fill up for a while before you have to go back. Movie theater – a place for entertainment. Drug store a place for dispensing therapy. Big box retailer – a place to receive the best products – a producer of programs to fit into! Sound familiar? A church family provides all this but so much more!

Sunday evening's service consisted of an Italian theme meal with the movie "Courageous" following. The children who participated in the Christmas play in December had their cast party following the meal.

Congratulations to Mark Wilson. He made the Dean's List for Somerset Community College for the fall semester.

March 31 is the day for the "Operation Inasmuch" one day mission blitz. Be much in prayer as we prepare for this.

Vacation Bible School is scheduled for June 18-22 and the theme is "Aviation Wonders." We are going to need leaders and helpers (crafts, music, recreation and missions). More information will follow.

Sunday was the deadline for the deposit for Children's camp which will be July 22-25. The camp is for children in third through sixth grade. The remaining $125 will be due a little later in the spring.

Thought for the week: "There is no problem, circumstance or situation greater than God!"

Kings Mountain area news

By Violet Bell/Beverly Murphy

I am sorry that we have not had any news for the past two weeks, but sometimes there is just not anything to report.

The Pleasant Point Baptist Church held a Valentine Supper at their fellowship hall on Sunday night. Soup, sandwiches and desserts were served. They also played games. A good crowd attended and everyone had a very good time.

Billy June Roberts, Lorraine McKinney, Geraldine Reese, and Evelyn Terry spent two days at Pigeon Forge, Tenn., last week. They ate out, enjoyed a show and had a very memorable time together. When these girls get together you always know that they will have fun!!

Charlie Terry and his wife Nancy of Indianapolis, Ind., and the late Ron Terry's daughter Tina Adams spent the day with Evelyn Terry in Kings Mountain this past Saturday. They had a very enjoyable day together. I met Charlie and Nancy when Ron passed and they are great people.

Most of you readers know Donald Stringer who lives here in Kings Mountain. I had reported earlier that Donald is sick with leukemia and is receiving treatments at this time. As we all know that is hard on a person both physically and financially. Several members of the community are planning to hold a Chili Supper Benefit and Silent Auction for Donald to help raise money to offset some of the many expenses that the family has had. The Chili Supper and Silent Auction will be Saturday, March 3 at the South Lincoln County Memorial Community Center cafeteria from 4 to 7 p.m. (also known as Old Memorial High School or Kings Mountain Elementary School). This will be eat-in or carry-out. Pete Vanhook, of Waynesburg will be cooking the chili and if you have ever had the pleasure of eating any food that Pete has cooked, you will know that it will be delicious. We will also have desserts and soft drinks. To enable us to make more money for the Stinger family, we are asking for interested people to donate a dessert.

Tonya Hubble is in charge of the Silent Auction and I spoke with her and she tells me that she has had several area business owners donate gifts but that she is still taking donations. If you have anything to donate that you feel will help raise money, call her at 365-2880. If you have ever had a family member who has had this disease or any other form of cancer, you will know what a drain it is on the family. So please donate a dessert, something for the auction or just come and eat chili and help raise some money for this family. Remember, we could be in the same situation ourselves sometime and neighbors help neighbors. You may call Beverly at 365-2991 for more information regarding this event.

News from the Highland United Methodist Church

Sunday, Feb. 12, was a cold, wintry day. Some of our most faithful couples were absent, Sunday, but the Lord sent some visitors to help us worship our Lord and Savior.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Elliott were absent Sunday. Jo Ann had had surgery during the week. Her surgery went really well. Also, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Davis were absent. Joann had been in the hospital with pneumonia.

Other prayer requests were for Destiny Armstrong (cancer-middle school student), Jeff Carmicle (cancer), Carl Elliott's niece, Patricia Martin (brain tumor), Laswell family (Moreland), Spencer Hughes (13-year-old, serious condition - sleigh riding accident, nephew of Isaac Hughes), the people of Syria and several unspoken requests.

A good report was given concerning Bowen McGuffey. Blood tests revealed no infection left from his knee surgery.

Wayne Alford was reported to be home and doing well, but we will still be uplifting him in our prayers.

Our congregation was glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Smith and Marvin's mother-in-law, Sarah Francis Roe, in our services. Marvin grew up in the faith of the Highland United Methodist Church.

This week would be a birthday of Marvin and Iva Young's mother, the late Helena Smith. Helena and Wayne Smith were extremely, devoted members at Highland.

Sunday's message was based on Luke 13:1-9 which emphasized giving each of us another chance to lead a fruitful life; just as, the fig tree was given another year before being cut down and destroyed.

Susie Langford will be returning to Malta this week. She and Peter are to be back in late April.

There was choir practice and a fellowship luncheon after worship.

This week's Wednesday night choir practice will be suspended due to church members gathering on Tuesday night at the Stanford Depot Restaurant to celebrate Valentine's Day together. There will be practice on Sunday.

Cards were given out to update addresses, birth and anniversary dates. If you want church information mailed to you, send your address, etc., to Rev. Don Scilley, 4908 Wayne's Blvd., Lexington, KY 40513.

Come and join us on Sundays at 10 and 11 a.m. and Wednesdays for choir practice at 6:30 p.m. Quit putting off coming to worship the Lord for a next Sunday may never come. There is joy that one is missing by not worshipping and serving the "Creator of All."

Just Kidding Farm taps into rising demand for goat meat

Continued from front keep them healthy and during the warmer months they graze on the grass. Goats are smaller than cattle and women find that they can handle them with relative ease; that is one reason why raising goats has appealed to women. “A lot of my buyers are women,” she said.

Mundelius assures people that there is money in goats, but you have to be smart about your operation. New owners will quickly learn that these animals can be mischievous and that a proper fence is of the utmost importance. “That’s the first thing we learned. Neighbors would call and we would have 200 goats in the middle of the road.” She and Eric, her only farm hand- a red border collie- would round up the goats; she compares it to scenes from the English countryside.

“They are smart, so you have to be smarter. They can open barn doors and get under fences. They have that look in their eye that they’re up to something.” With large goat herds, collies are a must. Collies are a premier herding dog and have an innate instinct to do the work. Mundelius trained Eric and through simple commands he is able to move her herd around with relative ease.

It is important to do your research and she recommends before starting an operation that you take a tour of a goat farm and ask questions, especially regarding the fence and barn design.

Lamb, unlike goat, has been established in the restaurant business, with a demand for lamb chop. President and General Manager of Bluegrass Lamb and Goat, Gil Myers also agrees that raising these animals is easier than most people might think.

“There is not a lot of capital or land required,” Myers said. “If you raise livestock then you can raise goat or lamb.” Local producers, from Lincoln and surrounding counties, provide the meat processed at his facility.

Myers has been able to find specific markets for the meats he processes. He said that the ethnic populations have shown a strong demand for goat. Masala, an Indian restaurant in Richmond, purchases their goat meat from Myers. Mermaids Bar and Bistro, located in Danville, serves lamb chops also bought from Myers. He has also seen an increase in the popularity of mutton and restaurants have shown an interest.

He too has come across people that are unfamiliar with these foods. “People are surprised when they try these meats.” Myers describes it as a “tender and tasty product.” Both goat and lamb producers argue that these meats are a healthy alternative to beef and other meats. Mundelius said that goat meat is lower in cholesterol and fat, even better than chicken.

Whether or not people decide to turn to goat and lamb as an alternative to the rising beef costs is yet to be determined. There is an increased interest in these meats and a commercial market does exist, just waiting to be exploited.

Mundelius enjoys her Kikos for several reasons. “They’re fun. They make money. And you can eat them.” If you’re trying goat meat for the first time, she offers some helpful tips. A good place to start is goat chili; the meat tends to blend in with all the spices. Goat tacos are another alternative, but the popular food item in the area is goat burger. Still, Mundelius finds no shortage in skeptics. “I have full grown men that eat deer, but won’t eat goat.”

Turnersville home burns

By Michael Broihier

Around 11 a.m. Thursday, a fire was reported by state highway workers at 220 KY 198 in Turnersville in a home next to the Turnersville Christian Church near the intersection of KY 78. Firefighters responded quickly but the building appeared to be a total loss.

No one was home when the fire broke out, but resident Greg Snow said he had been in the home less than a half hour before the fire was reported. Glass said that the fire appears to have started in the back of the building and Snow said that there were electrical problems in the bathroom. “I had to put a fire out with a fire extinguisher back in December; my daughter was so afraid, she wouldn’t go to the bathroom by herself.” Snow said. “I’ve been trying to get someone to come in and fix it, but you know how hard it is to get someone to come out.”

Robert McCormack, who owns the home, said he’d told Snow to hire someone to fix the wiring and that he’d pay for the repairs. McCormack had placed an eviction notice on the door of the home the Saturday before the fire; he said that Snow and his family had lived there for around 20 years rent-free and he had recently decided to evict them. The notice gave the Snows 30 days to vacate.

Firefighters spent several hours at the scene trying to extinguish the fire that had gotten up into the ceiling and afterwards helped Snow salvage some of his family’s personal property from the gutted house.

Donations for the Snow family are being taken at the WPBK-FM studio in Stanford.

Magistrates asked to remove library board members

By Michael Broihier

Tuesday, Teresa Robbins, speaking on behalf of a group of library patrons, asked the Lincoln County Fiscal Court to fire the five members of the Library Board citing the court’s power under Kentucky law to do so in cases of inefficiency, neglect of duty, malfeasance or conflict of interest. County Attorney Daryl Day advised the court not to immediately vote on the issue saying that members of the board, like all citizens, have a right to due process which would include a public hearing which could be a lengthy process. Robbins rejoined, “Twenty days; it is not a lengthy process.”

Day told Robbins that she needed to produce witnesses to corroborate her accusations and Robbins offered to produce letters documenting patron complaints, but Day said her backers needed to come to court. “The board members have the right to look their accusers in the eye,” Day said.

When Robbins agreed to produce witnesses, Day told her the Fiscal Court needed facts. “It takes facts; you just can’t parade ten people through here to give their opinions, those are just opinions,” Day said.

Judge Adams stepped in at this point, saying, “I want to give my two cents. I was told in the case of Kay Peppard (a former librarian) that she resigned and in the case of Miss Mingo, she resigned for health reasons and those are facts. Until we have other facts I don’t know what we can do.”

Magistrate David Faulkner told Robbins, “I’m sympathetic, but we’ve heard from no one who has said, ‘I was wronged.’ We just can’t say, ‘Everyone is gone!’”

Magistrate Dexter Todd told Robbins that she had his support if the board members would resign, but “I don’t want to go in there and open a can of worms.”

Martha Martin, the only Library Board member present, rose and told Robbins, “You have said that we have forced people to resign. That’s a lie!”

Robbins promised to produce witnesses for her case at the next meeting.

In other business, no action was taken on the proposed synthetic drug ordinance because there was some confusion over its publication in the newspaper as required by law. The ordinance is published in this week’s Interior Journal.

Chris Thomason, the Garrard-Lincoln Solid Waste Coordinator gave his annual report saying the two counties managed to recycle 955 tons of solid waste last year that would have gone in the land-fill and generated $126,000 in income for the county. He also reported that his operation had received grants to clean up five illegal dumps and one to use crumb rubber, produced from 5,100 recycled tires, to pad the children’s play areas in Logan-Hubble Park.

Thomason did warn magistrates that he would have to change his operation slightly next year due to a decline in the number of prisoners able to work outside of jail. He cited changes to Kentucky law that has reduced the number of Class D prisoners in the Lincoln Jail.

Magistrates accepted County Road Supervisor Bo Gander’s report comparing county mowing of roadside compared to a proposal by Naturchem for roadside spraying. The court voted to continue to use county labor to mow roadsides because it was cheaper.

Steve Hosner of WiMax Express received permission to erect a tower to extend broadband internet coverage to Kings Mountain. Hosner said the tower would be less than 120-feet tall and could be used for county emergency radio antennas.

Teresa Robbins, asked the Fiscal Court to begin the process of removing all of the members of the Lincoln County Library Board citing inefficiency, neglect of duty, malfeasance and conflict of interest. The magistrates said that Robbins would have to produce witnesses to her charges before they moved forward.

Lady Pats finish strong

by Nancy Leedy

Emily Fox scored 24 points and Sydney Harris had 19 points and nine rebounds as Lincoln used a 37-9 run to break open a close game and defeat visiting Woodford County 78-59 Monday.

A competitive game through most of the first half, the Lady Patriots got things rolling late in the second quarter, scoring the last nine points to turn a 34-28 deficit into a 37-34 halftime lead. The game-changing run rolled on into the second half. Buoyed by a triple and 11 points from Fox and 10 from Harris, Lincoln found itself comfortably ahead 65-43 with just 4:45 remaining in the game.

"I'm proud of the girls," Lincoln coach Cassandra McWhorter said. "After the last week and a half of the up-and-down rollercoaster ride we've had, especially the last two Friday nights, it was just a good team effort and a good win. We came in Saturday and were really focused. We had a really good practice, working a lot on defense and a lot on close shots. And I thought it showed tonight with our focus."

Lincoln, which shot a dismal 30 percent from the field in Friday's home loss to Danville, took fewer shots and made more in Monday's win, connecting on 45 percent (25-for-55). The Lady Patriots scorched the nets for 75 percent (9-for-12) over a span of five minutes and 28 seconds in the second and third quarters in a 20-1 surge.

Lincoln (18-9) got off to a 4-0 start with Rachel Spangler opening the game with a free throw and Fox following with a 3-pointer. Jessica Morgan and Chelsey Ford erased the lead with back-to-back buckets and Hannah Morgan followed with her first goal to ease the Lady Yellow Jackets up 6-4.

Kourtney Belcher answered Hannah Morgan's shot with a basket and Spangler converted on a three-point play to put Lincoln back up 9-6.

Woodford (18-11) trailed 18-15 after one but a Ford 3-pointer to open the second quarter tied the game and the freshman forward, who led Woodford with 15 points and eight rebounds, added eight points before the break to help the Lady Yellow Jackets to a 34-28 lead.

Lady Ads snap 12-game losing streak to Lincoln

By Nancy Leedy

The Lincoln girls were denied a sweep of the 45th District regular season as rival Danville took down the Lady Patriots for the first time since the 2006-07 season.

The Lady Admirals snapped a 12-game losing streak to Lincoln in a big way, toppling the Lady Patriots 70-51 Friday night.

Danville (17-6, 4-2 district) shot almost 50 percent from the field to earn the win, connecting on 23 of 47 shots, and helped cushion its lead with a 21-for-38 stint at the free throw line.

Kasey Young led a quartet of double-digit-scoring Lady Admirals with a game-high 24 points. Jo-Jo Leavell and Laken Grey both contributed 15 points and Essence Grey had 13. Leavell earned a double-double by crashing the boards for a game-high 13 rebounds.

"They shot the ball extremely well," Lincoln coach Cassandra McWhorter said. "They put the ball in the hole. They finished, we didn't. They got to the free throw line 38 times. We got there 16. It felt like Mercer County all over again at times."

Just as the Mercer bench started celebrating early in its upset against Lincoln, the Danville players could not contain their smiles and excitement as they broke the game open in the second half Friday.

Patriots let lead slip away in 50-48 loss to No. 12 LexCath

By Nancy Leedy

LEXINGTON — Trenton Edgington turned in an unforgettable effort Tuesday night, draining six 3-pointers to finish with a game-high 22 points.

But it wouldn't be enough to help Lincoln knock off No. 12 Lexington Catholic as the Knights battled back from a 13-point deficit to steal a 50-48 victory.

"They're a Top 10 team and Top 10 teams come at you. They don't quit. They keep playing. And they did that," Lincoln coach Jeff Jackson said. "We made some not good decisions with the ball. We've got to do a better job of maintaining our focus and continuing to do the things that got us up, and we didn't do that."

The Patriots led 42-29 before the Knights came charging back in the fourth quarter. Jack Whitman scored nine of his team-high 16 points in the fourth to help lead the Catholic charge and Bryan Woomer ripped off three 3-pointers in the 18-6 run to make it 48-47 with a minute to play. And, just as the final second ticked off the clock, Dillon Avare hit a game-winning 3-pointer to push the Knights past the Patriots.

"I had us in the wrong defense at the end of the game," Jackson said. "We should have been man and we showed man. When they threw it in, we went two and we lost their best shooter. You don't lose their best shooter, and we did that. We were worried about them going inside. Man's our best defense and, for whatever reason, I had us in 2-3. That comes back to a poor decision on my part."

Avare's game-deciding goal came as a disappointing end for the Patriots who had overcome their own deficit to overtake the state-ranked Knights.

Lincoln (17-12) trailed by seven midway of the second quarter when Carl-Lewis Cummins set off an 8-0 run with a 3-pointer. Jacob Conway followed with his own trey and Edgington closed the half with a bucket off a turnover to ease Lincoln up 23-22.

The Patriots put some distance between themselves and Catholic (21-7) in the third by outscoring the Knights 19-6. The game was tied at 23-all early in the third when Edgington responded by throwing down four 3-pointers, Conway added a fifth in the run and Luke Hill scored from the paint to give Lincoln a 42-

29 lead heading into the final frame.

Lincoln, which shot 42 percent (18-for-43) overall, went 7-for-11 in the third while holding Catholic to 3-for-10 shooting. But the Patriot offense was derailed in the fourth quarter by missed shots (3-for-8) and turnovers (4). The missed opportunities allowed Catholic to whittle Lincoln's lead down from 13 points to two late in the game.

Baskets by Carl-Lewis Cummins and Luke Hill helped Lincoln reopen a 48-42 lead with under two minutes to play but then Lincoln fell silent. A Whitman goal and a Woomer trey off turnovers narrowed the gap to 48-47 with 1:03 to play.

Trenton Edgington said the Lincoln County boys weren't trying to pick their district tournament opponent, though in effect they did exactly that.

By coming from behind to defeat Danville 47-39 Friday night, the Patriots set up another meeting with the Admirals — this time with their season on the line.

Host Lincoln's come-from-behind win dropped Danville into the No. 4 seed for next week's 45th District Tournament, meaning the two teams will meet in the semifinals if Danville wins a first-round game against Kentucky School for the Deaf.

"If we won we'd play Danville; if we lost we'd play Boyle (County). We just want to win them all. That's why we 'chose' to play Danville, because we had to win," said Edgington, who led Lincoln with 17 points and eight assists.

Choosing between Danville and Boyle wasn't on the minds of Jackson and his players after the Patriots scored nearly as many points in the fourth quarter (23) as they did in the first three (24) to defeat the Admirals for the second time this season.

"We call them 'gut games.' You have those, and you hope you can find a way to win," Jackson said. "Those games are out there. You've got to get yourself ready to fight and know we haven't beat them since I've been here," Danville coach Judie Mason said. "It was a big game for them and they're very excited. (Lincoln's) the best team in the region. In my opinion, that's the team that's got a chance to win the region, and for our kids to even be able to compete with them — I'm pretty proud."

Lincoln (17-9, 5-1) opened the game with a 7-2 run but it didn't take long for Danville to work the game even and take an 11-9 lead on a putback by Leavell.

It was the first of only three lead changes in the game. Lincoln retook the lead at the free throw line, but Leavell hit with a wide open layup with 3:36 on the clock to set off a 7-2 run that put Danville on top for good.

"The bottom line tonight is, we had a team that showed up that didn't execute," said McWhorter. "We didn't finish shots. We didn't box out. We got them to the free throw line too many times and came out on the losing end."

The Lincoln coach said a flurry of first-half fouls (11 fouls for each team) didn't help the Lady Patriots.

Game Scores

	1	2	3	4	Final
Danville	20	15	16	19	- 70
Lincoln Co.	16	8	13	14	- 51

DANVILLE (17-6, 4-2 D) - Kasey Young 24, Jo-Jo Leavell 15, Essence Grey 13, Laken Grey 15, CJ McPhearson 3.

LINCOLN (17-9, 5-1 D) - Emily Fox 13, Sydney Harris 20, Rachel Spangler 4, Ciara Saylor 2, Chanster Gilbert 2, Spencer Sims 2, Kelsi Honaker 4, Heidi Huffman 2, Tiandra Hocker 2.

"There were fouls called on both ends. It felt like every possession down the floor there was a whistle, and it's hard to get in a rhythm when that's going on for either team," McWhorter said. "To Danville's credit, they did a better job of pushing the ball and at least getting easier looks at the basket than we did, especially in the second quarter. We just never got in the rhythm. We never got out of that gate and it was just difficult from start to finish."

Lincoln held the early lead with, Emily Fox opening the game scoring with a putback and Sydney Harris, who led Lincoln with 20 points and seven rebounds, following with seven quick points to put the Lady Patriots up 9-4 three minutes in.

Danville whittled the margin down to 9-7 midway of the first with one free throw toss apiece for Leavell, Young ad Essence Grey. Leavell evened the score at 11 with her first goal of the game, then capped off seven unanswered points with her go-ahead putback.

Rachel Spangler and Tiandra Hocker each sank two free throws for the Lady Patriots and Fox, who finished with 13 points, got one free throw to keep Lincoln on top 14-13. But the lead was short-lived with Leavell hitting the layup, Laken Grey converting on a three-point play and CJ McPhearson closing the quarter scoring for a 20-16 Danville lead.

Lincoln was within 24-22 early in the second quarter off baskets by Heidi Huffman, Fox and Spencer Sims when the Lady Admirals came alive. Essence Grey scored eight of her 13 points in the final 5:23 of the second in an 11-2 run which put Danville up 35-24 at the half.

Lincoln, which finished at 30 percent (19-for-64) overall from the field, was held to just 18 percent (7-for-38) the first half.

"We played good defense and that was the key tonight," Mason said. "That was the difference tonight and that's what I've been harping on them. We've got to use our speed and I thought tonight we used our speed. Our shots were going and their's weren't and that was the difference."

Danville maintained a double-digit lead the rest of the way, using a 12-4 run early in the third to start to pull away. The Lady Ads led by as many as 24 points in the fourth quarter.

"Lincoln didn't play their best tonight," Mason said. "We're not that much better than them, but our kids came out and played hard."

Lincoln was 11-for-16 at the foul line.

Danville outrebounded Lincoln 43-32.

scratch and claw and battle for 32 minutes, and I thought our kids did that. I'm real proud of them. I thought it was a good win for us."

A number of players made key plays in the fourth quarter to help Lincoln (17-11, 5-1 district), which had already locked up the No. 1 seed, push past Danville (11-13, 2-4), which probably would have gotten the No. 2 seed with a win.

"We found a way to win. It wasn't a thing of beauty, but we had some kids step up and make some plays," Jackson said.

There were back-to-back post moves by Luke Hill, who scored three points off consecutive Danville turnovers to give Lincoln its first lead at 30-28 with 5 minutes, 4 seconds remaining.

There was a three-point play by Timmy Taylor that gave the Patriots the lead for good at 35-33 with 3:12 to play.

Then came a steal by fellow freshman Jacob Conway, who made a diving play near the Danville basket. Then, after the Patriots held the ball for nearly a minute, Carl-Lewis Cummins buried a 3-point shot from the corner to give them a 38-33 lead with 1:57 to go.

Taylor scored once more on a drive to the basket — he had eight of his nine points in the fourth quarter — to make it 40-34, and after Danville pulled within three points, Edgington hit six straight free throws in a 19-second span to seal Lincoln's win.

The Patriots won for the fifth time in their last six games and improved to 11-4 since Jan. 3, when they won 50-41 at Danville, despite going 10-for-31 from the field in periods one through three.

"We didn't shoot well, and they had a lot to do with that," Jackson said.

But Danville didn't, either. The Admirals were 11-for-34 in the first three quarters for an identical 32 percent mark before both teams went 5-for-8 in the fourth quarter to finish at 38 percent.

Jackson said Lincoln defended well throughout the game, and Edgington said they'll have to do that the rest of the way.

"That's what's got to carry us through the whole rest of the year. There's going to be some nights where you're not going to hit shots, and you've got to defend well," Edgington said.

Danville coach Andrew Zaheri said he was pleased with much of Danville's work on defense, though he said it wasn't quite as good in the second half.

"Our on-the-ball pressure wasn't bad, but we missed a few assignments, left some shooters open," he said. "And the thing with Lincoln, when you're playing a team that has four good 3-point shooters on the floor at all times, you just can't make any mistakes. It really seems like every time you mess up on an assignment they're going to punish you for it."

Lincoln finished with its lowest point total in a win this season, and Danville's score was its lowest in any game this season.

Hill scored 16 points for Lincoln, Cummins had seven rebounds and Taylor had three assists.

The Patriots were 10-for-13 at the free throw line, while Danville was 4-for-13 and its leading scorer, Tryston Ford, was 3-for-10.

Danville did own the boards, outrebounding Lincoln 32-23 with 16 offensive rebounds. Alex Burnside had a game-high 10 rebounds for the Admirals.

The Admirals led 12-7 after one quarter after Ford's buzzer-beating heave from the opposite 3-point line found the basket. Their largest lead was at 20-10 late in the first half, but the Patriots cut the margin in half by halftime and drew even midway through the third quarter.

Now both teams will turn their attention to their next meeting.

"We felt like we definitely were right there 'til the end of the game. So what we're working on is going to work, we've just got to clean it up a little bit," Zaheri said.

"They're well-coached and they've got a good basketball team, and they've got a difference-maker in Ford," Jackson said.

but Cummins missed the front end of the bonus, and Whitman grabbed the rebound for Catholic to set up the Avare game-winner. “We’re up 48-42. We have two turnovers. They score five points to make it 48-47. We miss the front end of a bonus.

We’ve been shooting free throws awfully daggone well. I was very comfortable with the person that was up there shooting it — didn’t go in,” said Jackson. “We made a couple decisions with passes we did not need to make. But I’m proud of my kids. They played well for 31 minutes and 22 seconds.” Catholic shot 40 percent (18-for-45) from the field. The Knights hit seven 3-pointers. They were 7-for-14 from the foul line. “They’re (Patriots’) defense was excellent the first half and it wasn’t bad the second half,” Jackson said. “You give up 50 points to them (Knights) you’re doing a pretty daggone good job. But, we let 2 (Woomer) hit two 3s (in fourth), one from the corner and one from the wing, and the one from the wing was really deep. And then we let their best shooter get a wide-open 3 at the end of the game. We were slow getting out on him and you can’t be slow getting out on him.” Lincoln, which was just 2-for-3 at the line, hit double-digit 3s for the night, finishing with 10. Timmy Taylor hit for Lincoln’s first trey in the first as the Patriots opened a 9-5 lead. Craig Floyd, who had 12 points for Catholic, did all his scoring in the first, finishing the quarter with a 7-0 run for a 12-9 Knight lead. Avare connected for his only other bucket of the night, a 3-pointer, in the second quarter to help Catholic to its biggest lead of the night, 22-15. “We let one get away tonight,” Jackson said. “They came back and made plays when they needed to and we didn’t.” Lincoln outrebounded Catholic 23-20 led by Hill with eight boards. Whitman led the Knights with six rebounds game, 65-43. Fox started the run with two free throws and a 3-pointer and Spangler scored a basket, then the Lady Patriots capped off the run at the foul line with Saylor, Spencer Sims and Fox collecting two free throws apiece. Woodford, which boasted a lineup of players 5-8, 5-10, 5-11 (2) and 6-1, was able to use its size to its advantage in the first half to keep the game close but height became a non-factor in the second half. “I was worried about their size a little bit and how much they would try to pound it in there,” said McWhorter. “But I’ve got a lot of tough girls and I knew if we did the little things and pushed the ball the way I wanted to they probably wouldn’t be able to stay with us the whole game.” “They were able to stay with us the first half but I thought the girls did a good job of trying to do what I asked them - to keep pushing the ball and keep running the floor,” she said. “We had people running the floor and actually looking for the ball and guards were looking to push it. When you do that, it makes it difficult for taller or bigger teams to stay with you.” Woodford shot 42 percent from the field (22-for-53). The Lady Yellow Jackets beat out the Lady Patriots on the boards 33-30 with Jessica Morgan getting nine rebounds. Lincoln outscored Woodford at the foul line, going 23-for-29 while Woodford was 11-for-14. Lincoln had just nine turnovers to Woodford’s 20.

FARM FACTS

Beef management tips for February

It is calving time for spring calving herds so get supplies ready for routine calving including:

- ear tags and applicator (put numbers on ear tags now)

- a cow-calf record book or notebook or U.K. Beef Calendar available at the Lincoln County U.K. Extension Office

- scales for calf weight
- iodine for calves' navels

Having calving equipment and facilities to handle problem births including:

- well-lighted pen bedded with clean straw

- puller and chains
- oral calf feeder

- frozen colostrums or commercial colostrum supplement

- electrolytes for dehydrated calves

- facilities to warm chilled calves (heat lamp, warming box, etc...)

Observe first-calf heifers closely now. Move them to a clean accessible pasture, away from cow herd and near facilities so that calving assistance can be given.

Many cows are calving now so be checking them daily for signs of calving. Signs of calving are relaxation of pelvic ligaments, enlargement and swelling of the vulva, and enlargement of the udder. Expect calving difficulty if (1) calf's head and two feet are not visible, (2) only the calf's tail is visible, and (3) the cow has been in labor for two hours. Be sure calf is presented normally before using a calf puller. Recognize situations that are beyond your capability and seek professional help as early as possible.

Cold weather can cause death in newborn calves. During extremely cold spells, bring the cow(s) into a sheltered area as calving approaches to protect the calf. Be prepared to warm up and feed newborn, chilled calves. Record birth date, cow I.D., and birth weight immediately. Identify calf with ear tag and/or tattoo. Registered calves should be weighted in the first 24 hours. Male calves in commercial herds should be castrated and implanted as soon as possible.

Keep cows that have calves separated from those that have not. Avoid muddy feeding areas so that cow's udders won't become contaminated and spread scours. Don't confine cows to muddy lots.

Increase feed to cows, which have calves. Increase their feed to 25-27 pounds of high quality hay. Grain at (three to four pounds for mature cows and about eight pounds for first-calf heifers) may be needed if you're feeding grass hay. The most important time to feed a beef cow is after calving. Thin cows don't come into heat very soon after calving. We must have cows in good condition, if we plan to breed them early in the season and keep our breeding season tight.

Watch for scours in newborn calves. Consult your veterinarian for diagnosis, cause, and treatment.

- Now some tips for the fall-calving herd. Breeding season should be over. Remove and confine bulls so they can regain their normal weight.

Consider creep feed or creep grazing (wheat, etc.) to supply extra nutrition to fall born calves, which may have to depend solely on their dam's milk supply for growth. They are probably not getting as much feed as they need.

Provide windbreaks or clean shelter for calves.

- Here are some tips for all cow/calf producers. You should be feeding a mineral supplement with adequate magnesium to prevent grass tetany now. Begin looking for herd sire replacements, if needed. Begin pasture renovation. You can overseed clover on frozen or snow covered pastures now with good luck if they are closely grazed.

For hay and pasture fields not closely grazed you will want to wait until the grass starts to grow then spray it with a herbicide before no-till seeding. Your other option is to tear it up with a disk then seed and cultipack.

Farmers need to work on pastures and hay fields now

By Dan Grigson

Extension Agent

Now is the time to start improving your pasture and hay fields. A little work and money now can pay off in better livestock gains and better milk production. Make your plans to start overseeding clover right now. Early February is also the time to soil test and add fertilizer to your pasture and hay fields.

Overseeding Clover – Clover in your pasture increases the productivity to where livestock gain or milk better, more pasture is available to take hay from and more livestock can be run per acre. Adding clovers to pasture is the cheapest and easiest way to increase your livestock profits.

The easiest way to add clover to your fields is by overseeding. Follow these guidelines and you will have good success with overseeding clover.

1. Sow early before grass growth starts – Feb. 5 until Feb. 25 is the best. After this you are better off to disc and sow or use a no-till drill and herbicides to slow down the grass

2. Sow eight pounds of red clover with one to two pounds of Ladino clover. Use the high yielding and persistent varieties. Based on our U.K. test plots, the top four red clover varieties for yield and persistence through three years are: Certified Kenland, Freedom, Cinnamon and Plus. The worse decision you can make is to buy common or medium red or uncertified because most of the time that will be the lowest yielder and seldom survives through the second year. Based on the U.K. test plots for white clover. The best looking at this time include: Regal Graze, Will, Advantage, Pinnacle and Patriot.

3. Have pastures grazed close and keep cattle on the field to walk the seed in and to keep the grass from competing with the clover. A good rule of thumb is that if the grass is ankle high, it is too tall for overseeding so it should be disked before seeding or use no-till and a herbicide.

4. When cattle start to bite off the new clover, pull the cattle off the field and keep them off for four-six weeks to allow the clover to get a good hold.

5. Take a soil test and apply the needed lime, phosphate and potash. Don't use any nitrogen, not even DAP because a little nitrogen is enough to feed the grass and choke out the new clover. DAP is a good choice the second year, but never at overseeding time. For overseeding it probably is best to wait to apply fertilizer until the field has been mowed or grazed off up in the early summer. This of course will only be true if your fertility levels are at least in the medium range. If you have to overseed with a fertilizer buggy then use only potash and/or super phosphate.

Fertilize Established Pastures and Hay Fields in February – Failure to fertilize pastures and hayfields according to soil tests may not be the way to cut costs in cattle operations. Phosphorus, potash, lime and nitrogen may all be needed, but you will only know by taking a soil test. Take those samples now and plan a fertilizing program. We can get your soil test results in seven to 10 days. Bring your samples to the U.K. Extension Office or ask your dealer to test your soil through our office. Our soil sampling is a free service.

I hope you will use a soil test, but for those of you who want a rule of thumb recommendation here are my suggestions: for grass pastures apply 50 pounds of urea, 100 pounds of DAP and 50 pounds of 60 percent potash per acre; for grass-clover mixed pastures – apply 100 pounds of DAP and 100 pounds of 60 percent potash per acre. Most of our fields will need three ton of lime per acre, if the fields haven't been limed in the past five years.

Now, when should you apply this fertilizer is the question I want to address. Most years it will pay you to put some fertilizer on in February and then again in May. The February fertilizer application will greatly improve yields and make your forage plants healthy for this growing season. You can also benefit from a nitrogen application in May after your first harvest of grass hay fields. This will stimulate new growth for another good yield. I generally recommend only 100 pounds of urea or 150 pounds of ammonia nitrate at that time.

For now the main thing to do is take a soil sample and apply the basic fertilizer and lime amounts needed to get good forage yields.

If you have questions about forage production or other agricultural topics we are just a phone call away at 365-2447.
